

school-bell shall be heard sending forth its glad call in one continuous sound to greet the third hour of the day in its march around the world.—Admiral Park Journal.

THE STATE OF EUROPE.

The state of affairs in Europe must be regarded as critical.

In addition to the depression in business, and the wide-spread unrest among the people, the ambitious intrigues of the leading governments, may precipitate a sanguinary conflict. The armies of Europe are perhaps greater at present than ever before in time of peace.

The Austro-Hungarian empire has an army of 800,000 men; Germany has an effective force of 1,200,000; France has 1,600,000; Italy 1,600,000; Russia, in case of war, could put nearly 2,000,000 men into the field. These vast armies, which are deemed necessary as a means of protection to the interests of their respective governments, are an immense drain on their resources, and an almost intolerable burden upon the people.

The attitude of England and Russia is very menacing. Both are ambitious to extend their territories and influence, and are mutually jealous of each other. It is to the interests of the governments of Europe to prevent the undue growth of any one power; hence their willingness to enter into combinations to prevent such a result.

A defensive treaty has just been signed between Germany and Austria, and the impression generally prevails that an understanding exists between England and Germany to secure unity of action in regard to all matters in the East.

Russia, it is believed, is anxious to secure an alliance with France and Italy, so as to be able in case of conflict, to meet the combined forces of her antagonists. It is the policy of Russia appears to be aggressive. She is evidently preparing for whatever may occur. She has given a large order for heavy Krupp guns, and her agents in the United States, it is reported, are instructed to furnish her with 3000 tons of lead. This may all look for peaceful purposes, but it looks very much like war. What the result will be can not easily be forecast. Europe resembles with the tread of armed men, and her rulers are playing a great game on the chess-board of nations. It seems as if the nations were angry, and unitedly rushing on to some great catastrophe. Can it be that such a state of things shall always last? Will not the very means now employed by the nations of Europe to maintain and increase their power necessarily lead to exhaustion, discontent and reorganization of its governments, under far different influences? The time does not seem to be far when a "men shall beat their swords into plowshares, and yet a fearful crash may come at the very distant day, out of which may be evolved a very different state of things. After all, God reigns, and he "putteth down one and setteth up another."

"PAY JOHN WILLIAMS"

At a church prayer meeting not far from Boston, a man whose credit was not the best, and who was somewhat noted for his failure to meet his obligations, arose to speak. The subject for the evening was, "What shall I do to be saved?" Commencing in measured tones, he quoted the passage. He paused, and again more emphatically asked the question, "What shall I do to be saved?" Again, with increased solemnity and impressiveness of manner, he repeated the momentous inquiry, when a voice from the assembly, in clear and distinct tones answered:—"Go and pay John Williams for the yoke of oxen you bought of him!"

The remainder of the gentleman's address was not reported. All present appreciated the fitness of the unexpected word in season, and were saved from hearing a lengthy exhortation from a swindler's lips.

The incident has led us to think that there are a good many people who, before they make much progress in walking in the way of salvation themselves, or guiding others therein, will have to "go and pay John Williams," or John somebody else, the money that they honestly owe him. There is no man shrewd enough to pursue a course of dishonesty and trickery, and still retain the favor of God in this world, or a good hope of glory for the world to come. It is best to settle up, and pay up, and then it will be in order to talk in the prayer meeting.—Exchange.

The New York Sea has an editorial upon the revival of business entitled "Breakers Ahead." Following is an extract:

The time for gambling which seems to have seized the public can only work mischief in the long run. The waste of money cannot be repaired, broken fortunes cannot be restored, commerce cannot be revived, and credit property cannot be insured by desperate measures which the thousands are victimized by the few who play with cards or loaded dice.

A reaction is inevitable unless the storm signals are heeded in time; and when it comes, the crash may be terrible. Better that all the millions which have come to buy here should have been sunk at the bottom of the ocean, than that the madness for gambling should be stimulated and encouraged.
